Grammar review: present simple vs present continuous

Present simple	Present continuous
zvyky, opakované děje I usually get up at six.	děj probíhající právě teď Shh, the baby is sleeping.
fakta, obecné pravdy Water boils at 100 °C.	dočasná situace „v těchto dnech“ I'm working from home this week.
trvalé stavy She lives in Brno.	měnící se a vyvíjející se situace Prices are going up.
signální slova: always, usually, often, every day, never	signální slova: now, at the moment, today, this week, currently, Look! Listen!

Stavová slovesa (state verbs) se v průběhovém čase obvykle nepoužívají: know, understand, believe, think (= mít názor), like, love, hate, prefer, want, need, mean, seem, belong, own, remember.
✗ I'm knowing him. → ✓ I know him.

Slovesa se dvěma významy: I think it's a good idea (názor) × I'm thinking about my holiday (přemýšlím); She has two cats (vlastní) × She's having lunch (jí); He is rude (povaha) × He's being rude (právě teď se tak chová).

2C Reading

Read the blog post and decide if the sentences are true (T) or false (F).

Living with Jake

When I moved into my new flat in September, I was a bit nervous. I didn't know anything about my flatmate, Jake, except that he works as a nurse. Two months later, I can honestly say he's one of the most easy-going people I know.

Jake works long shifts at the hospital, so our routines are very different. He usually gets up at five and leaves before I wake up. On his days off, he loves cooking, and he always makes enough for both of us. He's incredibly generous – last week he even bought me a plant for my room because he thought it looked empty.

That doesn't mean he's perfect. He's quite absent-minded and often forgets his keys, so I sometimes have to open the door for him at midnight. He's also a bit stubborn about music: he believes that jazz is the only real music, and nothing I say changes his mind.

At the moment, Jake is studying for an important exam because he wants to become a specialist nurse. He's spending most evenings in his room with his books, so the flat is much quieter than usual. I'm trying to be thoughtful and I'm keeping the TV down.

Is he the perfect flatmate? Probably not. But he's honest and reliable, and he makes me laugh – and that's more than enough for me.

1. The writer knew Jake well before moving in. T / F
2. Jake usually gets up earlier than the writer. T / F
3. Jake only cooks for himself. T / F
4. Jake sometimes needs help to get into the flat. T / F
5. Jake is open-minded about different kinds of music. T / F
6. These days the flat is noisier than usual. T / F

Discuss with your partner:

7. Find three examples of the present continuous in the text. Why is it used there?
8. Which four adjectives from 1B–1C describe Jake? Would you like him as a flatmate?
